

Minnesota Land Trust
Attorney List

The Minnesota Land Trust recommends that all landowners considering conservation easements retain counsel to assist them with the process. The areas of law most relevant include real estate, estate planning, and tax law.

The following is a brief list of attorneys who are familiar with conservation easements. This list is for informational purposes only, and no endorsement of specific attorneys or firms is intended. There are no doubt other attorneys throughout the state who are familiar with conservation easements, and landowners may certainly use attorneys who are not on this list.

Before engaging an attorney, the Land Trust recommends that landowners request an estimate of the fees for the requested legal services and inquire about the attorney's experience with conservation easements. Attorney fees will be the landowner's responsibility.
